

THE MAJORITY RULES

EQUAL WORK, EQUAL PAY

Supermajority

OUR WORK IS VALUED

This Means:

- Everyone, no matter their race or gender, gets paid equally for the work they're doing.
- Domestic workers, who work with our families, protect our kids, and take care of our elders, have the rights they deserve.
- Women are no longer underpaid, overworked, and discriminated against.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

Understand

Change is possible! Thanks to the work being done by people just like you, pay equity and domestic workers' rights are top issues.

Call

Begin a relationship with your elected officials by calling them and telling them we need safeguards in place to protect domestic workers across the country.

Unionize

Consider joining or starting a union! Unions are what built the middle class and are responsible for all of the worker protections we've come to expect.

Vote

Support candidates doing the work to build pay equity and protect domestic workers.

Build power by sharing your story

You're not alone. So many women just like you are silently struggling and want to see real change. Share your pay equity story far and wide with people in life and online, because stories are a powerful tool for making change. Get started by sharing on PantSuit Nation.

The Disparity Right Now

There are 2.2 million domestic workers across the country who are typically paid $12.01 per hour and are 3x more likely to be living in poverty compared to others.

In the U.S. for every $1 a white man earns:
